Chapter 1 by lightningstrikesannah (I'm back!)

Hannah and Ayana had been great friends since the start of 8th grade. They did not keep secrets from each other.

That's what Hannah thought.

Chapter 2 by eelir J

If you are looking for a teenage "mean-girls" kind of story you should stop reading. This is not that kind of story.

Ayana's secrets had nothing to do with Hannah... for now. But soon the secrets will have to do everything with Hannah. What Hannah doesn't know is that Ayana comes from an ancient family of assassins who pass their trade to their children. Doing so in the modern age has become increasingly difficult. Ayana's parent never had friends growing up. They were taught not to get emotionally attached to the "commoners". But, now they had to make "sacrifices" with Ayana so that they could blend-in in the community. This decision was frowned upon from the Order of Blood - the organization that gave the kill orders and coin to the assassins.

Ayana would soon get her first target. She trained all her life for this and there was nothing she can do to change her fate. Her parents made that clear to her during all her life. She did not like the prospect of killing someone, but she also did not want to be hunted by a group of highly trained killers. Anyhow, all the targets were some sort of criminals... at least that's what her parents were saying.

So here it is. Her first kill. She was waiting for her to open it. She opened the envelope and pulled the letter. All the world stopped! She could not believe her eyes. Her first kill is her best friend!

Chapter 3 by It'sme_C

Ayana's heart pounded against her ribs. What could she do? She couldn't kill her best friend-- She couldn't! But if she didn't... She didn't want to know what would happen. Hands shaking, her eyes scanned the letter, just in case there was a detail she had missed. But right there, in black and white, was the truth, under the caption 'Kill Order'.

Name: Hannah Millington.

Age: 15 years

Grade: Freshman

Address: 161 Bright Avenue, Greensboro, NC, USA, North America.

This couldn't be! Ayana had dedicated her whole life to this role, and now, it was forcing her to kill her best friend? She shook her head in disbelief. I'll tell them I can't do this. I have to! She was determined for just a moment, before she thought again, realizing they would never forgive her.

Ayana's eyes blurred with tears, and she gritted them, trying not to let them fall. She would have to do it, she decided. She would have to kill her best friend.

That was the day when everything changed.
